Shunning Normal Diplomatic Tact, Britain Bluntly Scores Soviet Acts

By Anthony Lewis LONDON, Sept. 24 (NYT),-Britain today ordered 90 Soviet representatives to leave this country because of espionage activities and barred 15 more, who are temporarily away, from returning. The Soviet Union will not be allowed to replace those expelled or excluded. And if anyone is similarly expelled in the future, his place must also remain un-

It was the most drastic diplomatic action in memory, here or elsewhere, against intelligence agents in Soviet missions. The total of 105 amounts to nearly a fifth of the 550 efficials in the Soviet Embassy and other offices

Along with the extraordinary scale of the British action there came public comments of unusual bluntness. The Foreign Office published the texts of an aidememoire to the Sorie! Union and of two letters.

An Icy Document

The aide-memoire, an icy document, called on the Soviet Union to end "operations against the sceurity of this country," It said pointedly that this should happen before preparations begin for the European security conference desired by the Soviet Union.

Warm Defense of Profits

Answering questions from o 10man panel of the prestigious Economic Club, Mr. Nixon made a warm defense of profits as the means to economic progress, appearing to hint that he would not recommend controls on profits in his plan for Phase Two. The President made only a hrief opening statement at the dinner here before submitting to

The thief let himself be locked inside the building last night. He removed the painting from its panel during the night and took it to a small closet, where he freed the painting from its wooden backing and frame by cutting along its sides. Sir-Alec went on to mention a recent attempt to send an intelligence operative here said a visa had been sought for B. G. Glushchenko as first secretary in the embassy even though he had been caught here years ago trying to bribe a businessman to obtain secret military equipment details. 'Some Organization'

"This is the man whom some Soviet organization has nominated to serve as first secretary at your embassy," Sir Alec said scornfully. His reference to "some organization" evidently meant the KGB, which is understood to have large numbers of places in all Soviet embassies. Mr. Gromyko's fallure to answer Sir Alec's letters was taken very badly in the Foreign Office doubtless worse than the Russians expected. It was as if the Soviet government claimed a natural right to spy, one man said today, and thought it no one else's business. But the matter might still have been handled discreetly, in more usual diplomatic ways. The Soviet officials here could have left gradually, and certainly without the Foreign Office publishing all the documents.

The decision to handle it all so bluntly and publicly was seen here tonight as very much re-flecting the style of Prime Min-ister Edward Heath

'Grasp the Nettle'

Mr. Heath believes in confronting issues rather than avoid-ing them. He likes to "grasp the nettle," as one colleague said today, and the general belief is that he approved the grasping of this very large one.

The timing of the news was accidental, however. The London Evening News had a leak on the KGB defector which it bannered in early editions today. The Foreign Office then decided that it must rush everything out before the Soviets reacted to the de-

One large question now is how the Soviet Union will react to this mass expulsion of its officials, In the past it has strictly reciprocated for any expulsions of its people here, for example ex-pelling a first and second secretary from Moscow last June when two Soviet diplomats were

A reprisal of some kind could be expected now. But it need not come in equivalent terms and in fact could not, because there are so many fewer Britons in Moscow. What might bappen is a Soviet move on some other front, such as British tourism in the Soviet

Peking's mysterious crisis occurs at an important juncture in China's foreign relations. The United Nations is about to vote to admit Peking—and will also vote whether or not to expel Taiwan. President Nixon is scheduled to visit Peking and numerous nations have recently established diplomatic relations with Communist China for the first time.

In addition, Sino-Soviet rela-tions remain bitter and China has been aggressively seeking to extend its influence in Eastern Europe—a etep to which the Russians have reacted strongly. If Peking's problems are not caused by a sudden illness but by internal political struggle among the leaders, the timing could hardly be worse for China's foreign image.

However, Premier Chou, En-lai has carried out his duties undisturbed throughout the last two weeks and there is no indication that his position or his foreign policies are threatened. Vice-Premier Li Hsien-nien, who is gen-white American woman who, police believe, wanted to hijack a jetliner to enable two jailed Black Panthers to flee the country was arrested after boarding a plane here today. Barbara Pliskow, 37. threw away two sticks of dynamite while fleeing from a passenger check on her flight, the police said. She was identified by her father as a radical political activist. She is a former part-time instructor at Wayne State University here. American Airlines spokesman said the airline had received from state police a warning of possible trouble on the flight. Sky marshals moved in and ordered passengers off the plane for the search. He said Miss Pliskow shouted, "We will all die!" as she was arersted. Marshals who searched found a -25-caliber pistol and cordite fuses, the police said. They said Detroit police had information that she planned to threaten to blow up the plane unless two Black Panthers, Michael D. Hill, 26, of Des Moines, Towa, and Ronald K. Irwin, 19, of Detroit, were freed and allowed to leave the country.

Hill is wanted for the murder of another Black Panther in New York. Irwin was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday after his conviction in the murder of a man in a Detroit commune.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 . WP. -Attorney General John N. Mit-chell said yesterday that President Nixon is "very seriously" considering nominating a groman to the Supreme Court.

He recalled in an interview that President Nixon has stated that it was his intention to be the first President to nominate a woman to the high court.

"The President is scrious in that intention," Mr. Mitchell said as he left a meeting with Sen. Hugh Scott, R., Pa., and Rep. Gerald Ford, R., Mich., where the two vacancies on the Supreme Court were discussed, In Detroit last night, Mr. Nixon commented in an address to the city's Economic Club, "I am more interested in the judicial philosophy than I am in what part of the country they come from, whether they are a woman or a man." He also seemed to hint at the serious consideration of Rep. Richard Poss, R., Va., when he said that legislators "with great experience in the House or Senate . . . are always good possibilities." Mr. Mitchell said he was also aware of growing congressional support for Rep. Post for a highcourt nomination. "Congress-H te on individual." Mr. Mitchell said. "He would be great in any job."

'6 to 10' Women Qualified While Mr. Mitchell would not say flatly that a woman will be named, he said he knows of "be-tween six and 10" women jurists who are qualified for the nomination by virtue of previous Justice Department investigations. In addition, he said, there are other women who may be appropriate nominees who are not currently serving as judges. The attorney general became the second person close to Mr. Nixon to indicate that the historical moment may be right to place a woman on the high court. The President's wife said Wednesday that she was "talking up" the possibility of giving the court a distaff side. Yesterday, Presidential Presi

Secretary Ron Ziegler was asked to amplify on Mrs. Nixon's re-marks. He said only that "no woman will be ruled out because she is a woman."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (UPI). -National welfare costs sky-rocketed 27 percent last year and relief rolls increased 17 percent, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reported yester-

John D. Twinnne, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilita. tion Service, said that welfare costs for the fiscal year that ended June 39 totaled $16.3 billion and that relief rolls increased to 143 million persons, "These are the biggest annual increases in the history of the program, Mr. Trimame said. But Mr. Twiname said that the annual increase for the last fiscal year was effect by a decline for three consecutive months in welfare apending and a two-month reduction of welfare rolls.

"It is too early to call these decreases a trend," Mr. Twiname caid, "but there is an obvious tightering up in the states."

Cuts by H States Mr. Twinime sald that 11 states have cut the lovel of welfare aid recently in fixed retrenchment moves, reducing the number of persons eligible for aid. They are Atabama, Arizona, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York and Washington.

The government's newest welfare report also disclosed a 53.4billion annual increase in costs, including $22 billion more in direct payments to persons on welfare and $1.2 billion in payments for medical care of the neede.

HEW said that welfare costs for the year ending in June, 1968, were $3.9 hillion. Since then, casts have increased to $10.6 bilhon in 1960 and $12.9 billion in 1970 before reaching $16.3 billion this year. While costs were soaring, the

For Welfare Device in Use in U.S. Bugs Rises by 27% Room by Tapping Telephone

-A breakthrough in electronic listening devices permitting any home or office to be "bugged" and tapped without entering it was disclosed by a whetap expert at conference of federal law-enforcement and security investigators here yesterday.

The device can be placed anywhere on a line leading to the phone to be tapped-on telephone poles, in underground cable vaults or in telephone company switching offices miles away. It picks up both telephone calls and conversations in the room where the phone is installed, even when the receiver is on the hook.

This feature, government bugging experts said yesterday, would make it unique.

According to Clyde Wallace, a bugging-equipment manufacturer who disclosed the development the device is already being used by two federal investigative agen-

Mr. Wallace described the device at a symposium here of the Association of Federal In-vestigators. Other speakers on the three-day agenda were officials of the Justice Department, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Bureau of Narcotles and Danger-ous Drugs and the Treasury De-

Spokesmen for the FBI and Central Intelligence Agency declined to comment on whether their agencies were the ones alluded to by Mr. Wallace in his speech. The FBI has primary responsibility for court-approved wire tapplug, which is interception of telephone calls, and bugging, which is monitoring of room conversations through electronic de-vices. The CIA conducts extensive electronic surveillance outside the United States. But it is not supposed to operate domestically unless the matter is related directly to its foreign intelligence work, After his speech, Mr. Wallace expressed surprise and some dismay that a reporter had been present while he talked. He declined to answer any questions on the new device. During the speech, however, Mr.

Wallace described the device as the first method for simultaneously tapping a phone and bugging the room where it is installed without tampering with the phone or even going near the premises. In tapping and bugging a phone, be said, the device is

WASHINGTON, Sept 24 (WP). placed anywhere on the telephone line running to it. It then emits a radio frequency, which trips a switch in the phone. This switch normally prevents telephone conversations in the room from traveling ever the telephone wire. When it is bypassed by the signal, the phone becomes an open microphone, transmitting both room conversations and telephone calls.

Normal phone calls can be made while the device is in operation, according to Mr. Wallace, who said that he is developing his own version of the device.

Nixon Says U.S. Will Announce New Low-Pollution Car Engine

DETROIT, Sept. 24 (Reuters).—President Nixon said last night that the federal government is going to announce in the next few days a new engine which in preliminary tests meets the stiff air-pollution-control standards set by Congress for The President, speaking to the Detroit Economic Club, did not give any details. But a spokesman for the government's Environmental Protection Agency said the President was referring to a new so-called stratified-charge engine.

Unlike a conventional spark-ignition engine, which uses a carburetor to deliver the proper air-fuel mixture to the cylinders, the stratified-charge engine features a fuel injection system similar to that used on a diesel.

The engine has been under a study for more than 10 years, and since 1967 by Ford Motor Co. under a contract from the Army Tank A :tomotive Command. The agency recently obtained one of the engines to test and has been giving glowing reports of its low-emission characteristics. However, Ford officials repeated last night that the engine cannot be developed for mass production by the 1975-76

Israel Bars Visa Extension Sought by Mobster Lansky

The Israeli Interior Ministry announced today that it would not extend the tourist visa of Meyer Lansky, but a lawyer for the American gambling figure said that Mr. Lansky would fight the Attorney Yoram Elroy applied for a supreme court hearing soon after Interior Minister Yosef Burg informed him that Mr. Lansky's application for an extension of his visitor's visa had been refused.

Mr. Lansky, 69, arrived here from Miami in July, 1970, and was granted a one-year visitor's visa. His announced intention of making Israel his bome sparked a controversy in the press.

It also posed a delicate problem for the Israeli government. Mr. Lansky, a Polish-born Amer-ican Jew, based his bid to settle on the prime precept of the Jewish state—the Law of Return.

Automatic Citizenship This automatically grants Israeli citizenship to any Jew entering the country, with three exceptions:

Anyone who endangers public health or state security; · Anyone who acts against the Jewish people:

· Anyone with a criminal past liable to endanger public peace. Under considerable pressure from Israeli newspapers, which printed thousands of words linking Mr. Lansky with organized crime in the United States, the government last month decided to extend his visa until next Monday while his past was in-

The decision came today with Mr. Burg's official word that Mr. a Jew."

But Mr. Agassi said Mr. Burg reached the decision after receiving a report from state attorney Gabriel Bach. He said Mr. Bach last month visited Washington where the Justice Department gave him access to files on Mr. Lansky.

Two Options Open

Mr. Agassi said the decision did not mean that Mr. Lansky would automatically be expelled Monday. "Lansky has two op-tions open to him. He can leave the country before his visa expires Monday or he can contest the decision in court,

"If he decides on the latter course, he can stay in the country until the legal proceedings are completed."

Mr. Elroy swiftly made it known that Mr. Lansky intended to fight in court, though in the past he has been known to shun

A federal grand jury in Miami, Fla, has been trying to get Mr. Lansky into court for more than a year to investigate illegal-gambling charges against him.

Defeat of Disarmament M Is Embarrassing to Humph

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (NYT). —In his most embarrassing set-back since returning to the Senate last January, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey found a disinterested Senate rejecting today the major disarmament amendment of the year.

With a bare quorum present the Senate rejected by a 39-to-12 vote a Humphrey amendment that would have postponed development and deployment of multiple warheads, known as MIRVs, for strategic missiles. His amendment, which he argued would help promote a strategic arms agreement with the Soviet Union, would have placed MIRV development and deployment funds in escrow for a year as an American initiative toward slowing the nuclear arms race.

Sen. Humphrey, who has made arms control one of his major interests since returning to the Senate, had not expected to prevail with his amendement. As he said at one point, his purpose was to "engage my colleagues" in an evaluation of the effect of the MIRV program in accelerating the arms race and thus to keep up the pressure on the armed services committees and the edministration to re-examine the desirability of placing MIRV warbeads on Minuteman missiles.

But he found it difficult to "engage" his colleagues. Through-out his two-hour speech, two or three senators, at most, were on the floor, and they seemed more interested in the documents on their desk than the words of the senator from Minnesota.

Bar-Lev Implies U.S. Missiles' Use at Suez Canal

TEL AVIV. Sept. 24 (UPD. -Israel's armed forces chief acknowledged indirectly today that Israeli warplanes fired American-made Shrike missiles at Egyptian missile sites on the Suez Canal Saturday in retalintion for the Egyptian downing of an unarmed military transport over the Sinai Desert.

In a television interview taped for broadcast tonight, Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev said that the action was intended to show Egypt that "an appropriate Israeli re-pr'sal" would follow further breaches of the Suez cease-fire.

In reply to a question, the chief of staff disclosed that Israel possessed American-made air-toground Shrike missiles but d'd not say explicitly that such missiles were used in the attack. But his reference to "Saturday's action" was interpreted by military observers as an indirect admission that such misbuilt missile sites on the Egyptian side of the canal.

The Egyptian military command reported that Israeli Phantom fighter-bombers, flying stx miles east of the canal, fired American-made missiles at Egyptian rocket sites. It said that the missles did not make any "kills."

Preoccupied With China

The Soviet leader, preoccupied with Communist China's expanding influence in the Balkans, and especially in Yugoclavia, would like to know that Yugoclavia remains 'on the Soviet side of the barricade." as one observer put it. Mr. Brezhury would feel easter, the Yugoslavs assume, if he were convinced that Beigrade remained within the Socialist camp, meaning closer to Moscow than Peking, even if it continued to stand outside the Warsaw Pact.

The Somet leader has spoken strengthening party ties in each of his public appearances, at the zirbort upon arrival, at a oniter in his honor and vesterday in a long address to workers at an electronic plant outside the cap:-

It is understood also that the Servet leader has counted this desire for strengthened party links with talk of expanding economic and technical aid and exchanges or experis.

But some Yugoslars are wary of an increase of technical and other excharges because of the possibility that such mereased contacts will lead to a measure of domestic upbeaval.

Decentralization internal confusion is largely a product of recent decentralization Yugoslavia. This has heighten-ed regional conflicts. It has also east new doubts on the likelihood of stable leadership once the 79-year-old Marshal Tho leaves the political scene. Yugoslar leaders are anxious that any succession crists be handled without interference by Moscow, but some observers acknowledge Moscow's interest in seeking that Yugoslavia remain generally within the Socialist camp.

Sources here say that the current talks between; Marshal Tho and Mr. Brezhnev, which are expected to be concluded tonight or tomorrow morning. will have covered this complex pattern of domestic and bilateral

The Soviet leader also will have discussed Communist China during his talks with President day he arrived, in a brief chat with two Western newsmen.

His visit to Belgrade, the first step in a major Soylet diplomatic offensive, was though to have been inspired in large measure by Communist China's growing influence in the Balkans, and especially by the new links between Peking and Belgrade.

Leftists Want Mexico to Cut U.S. Influence

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 24 (WP). -A group of prominent Mexican leftists has formed a new political movement that aspires to steer Mexico away from its economic dependence on the United Stales and to challenge the Institutional Revolutionary party that has ruled the country since 1929.

Among the group's members are writers Octavio Paz and Carlos Puentes; mining leader Manuel Santos; former milroad workers' leader Demetrio Vallejo, who spent almost 11 years in jall, and student leaders Heberto Castillo and Luis Cabeza de Vaca, both of whom have just completed prison terms for their role in the 1968 student movement.

If there is no name, no party and no explicit platform yet, the group stated at a press conference, it is because the movement's purpose is not to impose another ready-made structure from above, but to form an organization from below that represents the political reality of Mexico.

Mr. Paz, who resigned as ambassador to India when the army crushed the 1968 student movement, said: "The conditions now exist which allow us to act, to make people aware that there can be an alternative to the political monopoly and that the people themselves can determine which this alternative is."

The movement's principal aspirations go much further than the aircady progressive policies of President Luis Echeverria, It wants nationalization of banks and basic industry and, thus, an end lo Mexico's buisness oligarchy; democracy in the corrupt unions; an educational system that does not favor the privilegd; strict control of foreign investment and trade with the world.

Labor Wins Gains in Poll

LONDON, Sept. 24 AP: -The Contertatives were shaken today by a big deteat in a special parliamentary election and a Gallup Poll showing a slump in its public extrem.

A voting swing of 11.4 percent lo the Labor party was recorded in a special election at Widnes. Lancasiure, to fill a vacant seat in the House of Commons.

Langer Gordon Oakes beld the neat for Labor by polling 22,820 votes for a majority of 12,681 over his only opponent, Conservative David Stonley. The Labor margin was up from 7,543 recorded in the general election of June, 1970.

This massive swing against the government's policles of high prices and high unemployment must surely make the Torics stop and think," commented Sir Harry Nicholas, general secretary of the Labor party.
Prime Minister Edward Heath's

parliamentary majority, unaffected by the Widnes result, stands at 26 seats in the 630-seat house. The Gallup Poll. published in the Daily Telegraph, showed the Laborites as trebling their popularity lend over the Comservatives in the past mooth.

Labor now has a 19 percent lead compared with 6.5 percent in August, according to the poll. It said 54 percent of a representative sample of voters backed 35 percent invored the Constructives, 8.5 percent supported the small Liberal party and the remaining 2.5 percent were for other groups. Mr. Heath's own popularity

Russians Order Pollution Curbs At Lake Baikal

MOSCOW, Sept. 24 (UPI).— Soriet leaders today ordered strict new poliution controls for Lake Baikal, a Siberlan lake that contains one-fifth of the world's drinkable water. A resolution of the Soviet cabi-

Asked if he expected an accord with the Soviet Union on antiballitic missile, when the talks resume in Vienna on Nov. 15, Gerard C. Smith, head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, replied: "I should think the prespect was not bad."

A U.S. spokenman said after Mr. Smith's departure for Washington that if the Vienna phase showed signs of producing an agreement, the talks would be continued until around Christmas, then recume after a threeneek recen. The first two weeks after the discussions begin again will show whether this is justified, he added.

In the most optimistle communique since the talks began here nearly two years ago, they declared that certain areas of "common ground" with respect to a limitation of missiles had developed, and that a "clear understanding was achieved concerning issues to be resolved." Although the communique did not specify the type of missiles on which the "common ground" had been found, it said there had been "detailed consideration of issues relating to an agreement on the limitation of anti-ballistic missile systems."

In contrast, the communique said merely that the delegations "have given consideration to issues involved in agreeing on certain measures with respect to the limitation of strategic offensive arms."

This difference in tone, according to reliable sources, reflected the fact that an agreement in principle had been reached on the roles that the ABMs e ould play in protecting what Washington and Moscow consider the government functions to be preserved at all costs in the event of a noclear war.

What's Up in Peking?

The "Bamboo Curtain" shielding China from outside view has never appeared more impenetrable than it has in the last few days. The halted flights, the canceled furloughs, the unprecedented abandonment of the Oct. 1 National Day rally at which traditionally the leadearship displays itself: Is Peking bracing for a Soviet nuclear onslaught? Canght in the toils of a coup? Mourning the death of Mao Tse-tung? Our own cense of things is that Mao may well be either dead or dying and that his heire have not agreed which among them will succeed him, or which of his major policies to sustain. But whatever has happened, the example of the largest country in the world conducting its affairs in total secrecy ought to remind us all of how different the Chinece political style is from our own, the pleasantness of ping-pong notwithstanding, and of how difficult to fathom as well.

It is a reminder all the more apt for being issued in advance of President Nixon's scheduled trip to Peking. And there, of course, is the rub. If anything in current world affairs is more fragile and portentous than Washington'e China initiative, it is Peking's "American initiative." It is in the nature of politics anywhere that no foreign question would be so domestically explosive as whether and how to change relations with one's most powerful and longest-standing foe. The change described by Peking's invitation to Mr. Nixon could have been made only under conditions of political tension. Some would have had to argue that it was necessary, because of Soviet pressure, and safe, because of America's Vietnamenforced withdrawal from Asia, to approach the United States. Others would have argued that it was neither necessary nor safe and that only increased vigilance and selfreliance could preserve China's security, and its revolutionary image and its interior

The experts are reasonably sure that Mao was part of the dominant faction, including Chou En-lai, which took the American initiative, but they are not at all sure that the Chou faction can stay dominant without Mao, if he is in fact dead or dying.

It is then only prudent to set aside the comforting judgment that Mr. Nixon's invitation to visit China culminated a natural historical process or that it was a flowering of his own personal diplomacy. The invitation may have represented nothing more than a passing coincidence of Mr. Nixon's political needs and openings, and Mao Tsetung's. If these are anxious moments in the Forbidden City, they can hardly be less so in the White House.

The Medina Acquittal

After President Nixon abruptly intervened last April in the case of Lt. William C. Calley jr., convicted of murdering Vietnamese civilians in My Lai, the Army prosecutor army cannot function unless command wrote an anguished letter to the President. In it the prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey M. Daniels, said: "You have subjected a judicial system of this country to the criticism that it is eubject to political influence . . . What will be the impact of your decision upon the future trials, particularly those of the mili-

It is difficult to escape the conclusion that the impact Capt. Daniels feared is reflected in the astounding acquittal of Lt. Calley's immediate superior, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, of all charges of involvement in the killing of civilians at My Lai.

To be sure, there is no evidence that Capt. Medina participated directly in the mass slaughter of civilians at My Lai, as Lt. Calley unquestionably did. Testimony was fragmentary and inconclusive as to the nature of his involvement in two killing incidents with which he was originally specifically charged. But the court-martial's finding that the company commander had not been aware even hours after the assault was launched that his men were "improperly killing non-combatants" raises questions of the most fundamental character. If there was no command responsibility in this situation, if Capt. Medina was indeed innocent, then the Army itself stands condemned. An authority and responsibility go hand-in-

The Medina acquittal apparently concludes the government's effort to bring to justice the men involved in the immediate combat situation of one of the most shameful episodes in American military history. Of 13 officers and enlisted men originally charged with the killings at My Lai-a handful of those who took part—only Lt. Calley has been convicted; and his life sentence has already been reduced to 20 years by a firstievel review officer operating under the shadow of presidential intervention.

That record is no credit to the Army, or to its commander in chief. It casts fresh doubt on the depth of the U.S. commitment to international rules of warfare, especially in light of the Army's harsh treatment of Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert, the much-decorated professional soldier who was railroaded out of a combat command in Vietnam and now, faces early retirement because he tried to persuade his superiors that battlefield atrocities could not be ignored.

International Opinion

Nixon Relies on Peking

To be re-elected in 1972, the American President needs to re-establish the economic situation in the United States and get rid of the Vietnam war. Allegedly, the President would have the intention of separating the first of Hanoi's seven points from the rest of the context, and would propose a negotiation on this particular point offering to fix the date of complete American withdrawal. The North Vietnamese have reaffirmed that their eeven points are an entity not separately negotiable. But there is another trump in the President's game: China, Mr. Kissinger, during his meeting with Chou En-lai last July in Peking, convinced the latter the U.S. has strongly decided to leave Southeast Asia. Therefore the President can hope that Peking, which wants to accelerate the American pullout from Asia, will recommend that Hanoi accept the forthcoming American propositions.

> -From France-Soir (Paris). * * *

The chief in the White House has just announced his intention to give Peking its due-the Security Council seat which rightfully belongs to it as sole representative of China. But that won't put everything on the rails. Mr. Nixon has expressed at the same time his opposition to expelling Taiwan. This is tantamount to squaring the circle inasmuch as [Peking] has no more intention of supporting the "two Chinas" fiction than that of a separate existence for Taiwan.

-From La Nation (Paris).

China's Dilemma

If Mao's disappearance from the political scene were confirmed, it would have a heavy bearing on a country painfully emerging from the turmoil of the Cultural Revolution. His succession would pose serious problems. The new trend of Chinese diplomacy, notably its rapprochement with the West and its stiffening toward Moscow, is in itself an authentic revolution that the regime will not digest easily. It would be difficult after receiving President Nixon with a display of Asian hospitality, to pretend to be the leader of a hard-line Communism and to accuse Soviet deviationists of compromise with American imperialism.

> -From L'Aurore (Paris). * * *

The evidence for an internal political crisis has been hanging around in the hazy political atmosphere in China ever since the Cultural Revolution ended in the ninth party congress 18 months ago.

It was obvious then that a patched-up political leadership had in turn patched up the political fissures opened up in China by that upheaval. It is fair to deduce that the bitter rivalries aroused in the Cultural Revolution have not finally been calmed.

Leave canceled for troops who are told to stand by for an important announcement, aircraft grounded, international flights altered without explanation, can all be added to reports of increased Russian reinforcement on the border and visits by Soviet leaders to the area, to make some new threat on the border the cause of China's anxiety.

Accepting this possibility, nevertheless the question stands. Why cancel the parade? It was held in October 1969, at a time of equal tension on the border. As a demonstration of China's will the annual march-past would surely be essential rather than expendable. -From the Times (London).

'Peace' in Vietnam

People have seen that despite paying lipservice to the seeking of "peace" in Vietnam, U.S. imperialism has in fact taken outand-out war actions. Its scheme to force the Vietnamese people to submit by means of bombing can never succeed, no matter in the past, present or future.

-From the People's Daily (Peking).

The Money Men on The Hill

By William V. Shannon

WASHINGTON.—As presently organized, the House of Representatives is insufficiently responsive to the urban and social needs of the nation. Its seniority system and committee structure are forces for the status quo and a constant drag on progressive reform. They work more in behalf of the interests and conservative attitudes of rural and small-town Americans than of the interests and opinions of the cities and their suburbs where the majority of Americans live.

The Appropriations Committee is at the center of this maldistribution of power. With 55 members-33 Democrats and 22 Republicans—it has only two women

"I am not opposed to spending more money in the ghettos and for education and health and cleaning up the Potomac and so on, but we can't spend money we don't have. We ought not to spend money unless we have it in hand or we have it in sight." But what is an essential program? On Wednesday, the House approved a money bill providing $352 million for the Bureau of Reclamation and $1.4 billion for the rivers and harbors projects of the Army Corps of Engineers. A congressman from a big-city slum might well think there are more urgent human needs than opening up the Yazoo backwater channeling the Tombigbee

Weary of fighting for social programs only to see them, once enacted, undercut by conservative money men, congressional liberals sometimes dream of returning to the arrangement which once existed in the House. For many years, major legislative committees had the anthority to appropriate money for the programs which they authorized. Nothing would more invigorate the House than the consolidation of the existing 20 committees into nine or 10 each with the power to appropriate money for its own programs. A Plea for Compassion I am an American living in Europe who is proud of his country. I am shocked however, by a growing paucity of human compassion and the automatic use of guns to solve our problems in the States. The tragedles at Attica, San Quentin, Kent State, Orangeburg and Jackson State underscore a central theme of Charles Reich's book, "The Greening of America." Mr. Reich says: "A society is mad when its actions are no longer guided by what will make men healthier and happier, when its power is trading patterns to bring about such a shift in the dollar flow. But the dollar problem is not primarily one of trade as the no longer in the service of life. It this fact that stands back of the fury and rebellion of youth." The truth of this statement is revealed sadly but poignantly in the San Quentin and Attica uprisings. uninformed readers that certainly the essiest method of solving problems is in restrospect. It takes only average intelligence to look back on any situation and identify the flaws and chart a better course.

All Americans are appalled and ashamed at what happened at Attica prison. Most of us, even in other parts of the world, listened to our radios with intense interest and concern until the horrible drama was finished. However, there are at least three things that should be kept in proper focus and perspective in considering the right and wrong in how the impasse was finally solved: (1) It was not the guards or the prison authorities, but the prisoners who created the situation; (2) For various crimes these men had forfeited their rights as free desperate men with little or nothing to lose and therefore were urreasonable in their demands. The loss of life was lamentable but not unforgivable. We read and continue to read columnists who decry what happened and say that it should have been different and yet we are waiting to read someone who will tell us exactly how. Tom Wicker, who was present and serving as one of the arbitrators, found no solution and went away criticizing the authorities. What was the "sensible alternative"?

EVERETT STENHOUSE,

Mr. Wicker's articles reach the ultima Thule of dishonest and irresponsible journalism. ## Shostakovich Babi-Yar Symphony Draws Ovation in London Debut

By Henry Pleasants

LONDON, Sept. 24 (IRT).—The first London performance of Shostakovich's Symphony No. 13 ("Babi-Yar"), by the London Symphony Orchestra under André Previn at the Royal Festival Hall last night, attracted a packed house and ended with a fervent ovation.

What other symphonic composition of the past decade has had such a reception? Bernstein's "Mass," of course; but let's wait until it, like Shostakovich's setting of Yevtushenko's melancholy poems, is 10 years old.

What seemed so significant about this symphony and the warm performance and reception was not that the work itself may well be Shostakovich's masterpiece, or that Previn's reading of it, one of his own finest accomplishments. Far more significant for the observer of the contemporary musical scene was the fact that there should he such a welcome for a new work of enormous dimensions in which not a chord, a progression, a melody or a detail of instrumentation might not have been written in 1910.

Shostakovich, unlike Stravinsky, Schoenberg and Bartok, has never been an innovator, a progressive in the evolutionary sense; and so he has not been numbered with them by the critics as a giant of modern music. And his music has, to be sure, been blemished from time to time by episodes of conformative, hokum-laden fustian.

But the success of a work like "Babi-Yar," not only well played, but also very well sung, in Russian, hy John Shirley-Quirk and the Ambrosian Singers, might well suggest that in classical music things have not changed as much or as fast as the Schoenbergs and Weberns, the Cages and the Stockhausens and their critical spokesmen, would have us believe. It would seem more likely that the avant-garde has lost contact with former girl friend whom she has not seen in many years to spend a weekend with her and her husband at their seaside residence. The two women chat of the old days when they were girls to-gether in London. The husband, perhaps feeling excluded, suddenly claims that he has met the guest before and that they even had an innocent flirtation in the long ago. She denies this, but ha insists. Whether or not his recollection is erroneous is of no consequence, for all that is rosemary now.

Pinter succeeds in evoking the twilight melancholy as tha three look back on their pasts, each of them discovering something different in their nostalgic reverie. One seeks to read between the lines, but between the lines there are only wide-open spaces. We have here a specimen of the dramaturgical trompe l'œii.

In most of his earlier plays, Pinter has written of a lower so-cial stratum, one upon which the criminal underworld is frequently and chillingly threatening to impose itself. The dynamo of violence has been heard ominously pounding in the offing like the distant drums approaching in "The Emperor Jones." This has served as a contrast to the vague, evasive dialogue.

But on this occasion all is te-diously middle class. Middle-aged horedom and vain regrets are difficult subjects to dramatize and the oblique approach to them here is not satisfactory. There is style to the exposition, mannered though it may be, and the characters converse in the strained idiom that is Pinter's trade mark, but the play itself is in need of an adrenalin injection. Delphine Seyrig is invariably a fascinating actress, so her mere presence is an asset. Her role as the hostess is so subtle-or so blank-that it is not always certain what she is supposed to be acting. But when, for example, in one of the more comprehensible interludes, she emerges radiant from a refreshing bath, she is completely convincing.

Françoise Fabian gives the enigmatic visitor a sharp, severe edge, and Jean Rochefort is the husband. The direction is chiefly a moving of the play's personnel from chairs to solas and from Thetis Blacker, Marjorie Part Gallery, 285 King's Road, Chelsea, London S.W. 3 to Oct. 2.

Catalogued as batik paintings, which technically they are, Thetis Blacker's latest magnificent hangings bear a very remote relationship indeed to the craft so popular in the 1920s. Having first studied pre-Columbian textile printing in South America, then fabric printing at Chelsea School of Art, last year she went on a Churchill fellowship to Java, Bali, Thailand and India to study printing and dyeing.

Combining the South American and Oriental techniques with her own research, Thetis Blacker has evolved a way of producing batik paintings on a vast scale, inventing a mythology to suit her fantasies. These works are colored and textured in an extraordinary manner, and a whole cosmogony huilt up-"In the eye of a phoenix there is a ring; in the ring there is a sea: in the sea there swims a fish; and in the fish's mouth is held an orb reflection of our

They will be auctioned at the Hôtel Drouot on Oct. 4.

While outsiders may see this pre-sale exhibition as a very sensible and normal procedure, it is nothing of the kind. It is, rather, a sign that the French salesroom, once a stronghold of conservatism, is changing.

It is unusual for articles to be auctioned to be on public view for such a long time—two weeks

-prior to the sale. And, until very recently, selling contemporary art at auction would have scemed fantastic to most French auctionecrs. Maitre Robert, who has become an ardent promoter of modern art in the salesroom, admits that the idea came to him gradually.

In 1967 he was asked to dispose of the works in Willem Van Hasselt's studio after the artist'a death. Van Hasselt, a late impressionist, was almost unknown. To Maitre Robert's delight and surprise the does not actually use this word), the sale was a success. Nobody really expected near-contemporary works to sell well-let alone paintings by someone whose name meant nothing to most collectors and dealers.

Thus it was that Maitre Robert made up his mind to hold regular sales of modern works. After Van Hasseit, came sales of art by Anders Osterlind and Henri

Eye-Opener

The first Person auction was an eye-opener. All 100 lots sold and fetched far above their reserve prices. Several months later (Dec. 12, 1959), the prices for Person works were even higher. In May, "Matin sur le Port de Toulon" had established the record for a Person at 51,170 francs. In December, "La Baie de Cassis," boostoù the record to 88,750. The high prices were due to spontaneous public enthusiasm. Only a fifth of the people at the first auction were professionals and there had been even fewer of them at the later sale, held in the posh Palais Galliéra, Person's work would naturally appeal to a great number of people were they given a chance to see it. This, of course, is what an auction does: exposes an artist's work to a wide public. Per-son's manner is pointillist and reminiscent of Signac's. By 1969, works by the well-known painters In this style had become scarce and buyers were looking for substitutes. Person's work responded to this demand.

Maltre Robert suggests that the receptiveness of the salesroom public to modern art has two possible explanations. First, there are many unsophisticated huyers young would-be collectors who shy away from art galleries, feeling more secure in the anonymity of the salesroom. They reason that, with a bit of luck, they may get a picture at a much lower price at auction than in a gallery.

The other possible explanation concerns the rich collectors et the top of the scale. At "studio sales" (rentes d'atclier), the collector is offered a wide range of the artist's work and, often, the very best. Nobody has forgotten the 1917 Degas sale, where a few lucky buyers picked up some of the best bargains in art history. Once one or two well-known pcople in the art world start bidning, the rest of the room reacts. Even experienced collectors and dealers get caught up in the excitement. How will Aime Henry fare on Oct. 4? Ris inspiration, unmistakahly surrealist, should help him. He was a pupil of Desplau Maillol's contemporary and rival.

And he was once chej decorateur at the Opera Comlque. His background is reflected in his work. Henry likes statuesque profiles, looming large in strange, barren landscapes; sometimes he conjures up a prim face, reminiscent of some of the female members of the Comique company.

Predictions are unsafe: Maitre Robert never makes them. Whatever the outcome of this sale, thing is certain: Modern contemporary art has become an important part of salesroom activities. Such sales account for a third of Maltre Robert's turnover. Other auctioneers have taken the same line. One of them, Jean-Claude Binoche, has successfully launched avant-garde auctions. All this points to the beginning of a new commercial

ART IN PARIS____ A View of 18th-Century Venice

By Michael Gibson DARIS, Sept. 24 (IRT),-In 18th-century Venice the carnival lasted six months of the year and everybody who was, or who aspired to be anybody had his mask and wore it in the streets and the places of social gathering. Each year the doge stepped into his gold and crimson galley, a monstrously recoco stage property named the "Bucentaur," and, surrounded hy hundreds of beetling gondolas, went out to the Adriatic. There he cast a gold ring into the water signifying his betrothal to the sea ("One cannot be sure that the hride is consenting," Voltaire observed). On other occasions, borne along with several other dignituries in a pulpit set on the shoulders of a team of sturdy men, he threw coin to the scrabbling populace while gondoliers

with heavy poles whacked a path for him through the throng

(there is a Guardi painting in the exhibition at the Orangerie in Paris that depicts this scene).

Venice was then a theatrical vamp, aware perhaps of her inciplent wrinkles, but daszling still and dazzled too by her own beauty. It is no doubt because of this huge narcissism and the force of unreality surrounding It the unreality of stone on water, the unreality of selfhood that sent a whole society masked into the streets during half the year—that Venitian art of the 18th century, despite its high competence and frequent brilliance, is devold of any sort of contrast with the dominant view of society. Light, mundanely witty, luminous and chic, imbued with the theatricality of power, it stepped nimbly on all the right squares and knew just what was not done and what must not be said. Tiepolo

See how the prettty ladies raise their faces to the light, and how the dancer spreads her splendid gown to catch the glances of the crowd! How the spectators gawk and the old men with their masks crouch and peer like the elders ready to spring out at Susannah! Lovely lady! Fine gentlemen! Silly old men! This is Gian Domenico Tiepolo'a "Minuet" from the Louvre. The light is delicious, the variety and grace of movement and coherence of the whole brilliant. Canaletto's views of Venice are a mirror to the city. Almost. How neat his perspectives and transparently northern his light. How all his lines race to their appointed place on the horizon with human figures poised on them unmoving like minims and crotchets on a score. Everything in its place. Canaletto is precise and correct, an aid to memory.

Guardi Francesco Guardi, his junior by 15 years, is much more taken with movement and he eloquently conveys the energy and tur-hulence of state occasions and the daily hubbub of the great thoroughfares (compare his electric view of the Rialto to that, so staid, of Canaletto). His perspective is less rigid and he points up movement by an intelligent use of highlights and, sometimes, by the dynamics of comma-like curves. These sharp flecks of movement give his Venetlan views their characteristic atmosphere of high-strung urgency in a well-ordered setting.

The fundamental lightness of 18th-century Venice shines more humanly in Goldoni's comedies, and its tenderness in the music of Vivaldi, than either does in the painting of the age. It does appear in the color of some of its painters. (Not all by any means—how thick and vulgar they can sometimes he!) But there in a sense it stops. There is an obstacle that prevented all these artists from breaking the form: The market did not allow it. And they did not really trouble to find a way around it. As a result, while 18th-century. Venice produced some great painters none of them was a great creator hecause they all accordant the vital conventions. accepted the vital conventions of their time and rang the changes on them, sometimes originally or brilliantly, instead of reaching beyond them and deepening the perspectives of their age.

WILL YOU PROFIT IF NEW YORK CLIMBS FOR THE NEXT 4 MONTHS?

Money that has moved into new industries may start multiplying if this young firm has been right about the scoop of mid '71

CAPITAL CONSULTANTS, an aggressive young research, management and brokerage organization, has been strongly bullish about New York's prospects for the next couple of years ever since prices started scooping last June 18 on news of negative mutual-fund results. Under particularly close examination in the weekly CAPITAL research reports have been new fields such as the minicomputer industry, data communications, micrographics and integrated circuitry where sales in specialized sectors promise to triple and quadruple over the next

Selective Doubling Action by January?

Now, as a prelude to the next new-concept boom, CAPITAL says in its newest study of such controversial issues as UNIVERSITY COMPUTING (around $26) and TELEX (around $14) that enough post-spring consolidation has been completed to support a widely unexpected technical rally through to at least next January. To see why dramatic projections are being made for such recently-unexciting factors as PITNEY BOWES in office equipment and ZURN in pollution control, simply return the coupon below or telephone either CAPITAL office. At no cost or obligation to you we'll be pleased to send our latest new-rally report plus enough subsequent weekly studies to enable you to decide at your leisure whether our methods or facilities can help you accelerate your personal capital gains program.

Mr. Carll gave on indication of what conclusions, if any, he expected to emerge from next week's storting of the Internatrenal Menetary Fund, in which lic is certain to play a leadingif that always obvious-role.

But he warned that, in order that long-range solutions to the monetary crisis be worked out, "transitory arrangements" would be needed for the settlement of payments between trading nations. He implied that such an interim agreement should be worked out quickly.

The members of the EEC, Mr. Carll said, "including the candi-date countries, might adopt 2 system for concerted flurimation of their exchange rates vis-a-vethe deliar."

"The working of such a system," he continued, "presupposes that, whether it be applied to all transactions to current ones, or only to trade transactions, all the countries concerned thould can in a common dotter policy."

He wers on to say: "This would require agreement about the maximum measure of depreciation or appreciation of the dollar, about the use of dollars for some torms of intervention on the market, about the possibility of arbitrage between the markets for European currencies and the do!lar market, about the settlement of debts between central banks in the currency of the creditor country and the need for all com-the same footing." Such arrangements, he asserted, would also represent the first step toward a common European approach to the retorm of the international monetary system.

Mr. Carli left the impression

German Giant's

Earnings Drop

Sept. 24 (AP-DJ).-Volkswagen is close to being unprofitable, and "whether or not VW is operating at a los is now just a matter of beakkeeping," says an analyst for one of West Germany's big.

Analysts say VW. Germany's largest industrial conserts, is taked with mattive problems: The adverse impact of monetary thinger, excussive reliance on the "beetle" model, problems with new models introduced to reduce this reliance, uncreased competition in major markets such as the United States, merger weet, rising production costs, and government interior-

Exactly how had the satuation really to remains a matter for speculation: Volkswagen does not report quarterly or semi-annual financial results. But last year its earnings fell 42 percent to the equivalent of $52 million, from: $50 milian in 1969 (these lighter are based on a parity of 3.66 deutsche marks to the dollar). At the same time, however, worldwide sales rose about 13 percent to $4.3 billion last year from $3.6 billion the year before,

Longe Dividend

This year's profit will almost certainly not cover a dividend equal to last year's, which totaled $45.4 million, German analysts the ministry raid. The glowdown As in 1970, Volktwagen sales continue to rise this year, Friedrich Thomes, management board member responsible for finance, predicts volume will rise to beween $4.6 billinn and $4.9 billion, from last year's $4.3 billion.

One of the company's problems is the strength of West Germany's set at the beginning of thus currency, a strength largely built on massive exports of products like Volkswagens. But when the mark's value increases, it raises overseas prices nn VW exports. The company can pass on to consumers some of these increases, but not all if it hopes in remain competitive.

Thus, Volkswagen says the 9.3 percent revaluation of the DM in late 1969 cost the company $65.6 millioo in 1970, a major reason, along with rising production costs, for the profit decline that year. Similarly, Mr. Lotz has said that in the present currency float, mark's rise against the dollar will cost the company $19 million a year. Currently, the mark is being traded at about 10 percent above

Japanese Competition

Volkswagen has problems with its overseas sales, especially in the United States, where sales of imported cars rose to 1.1 million units in the first eight months, up 32 percent from a year earlier, but VW's sales fell 1.1 perceot to 390 000 units

Volkswagen's problem is increased competition in the small car field, especially from Jopan. In 1965, wheo VW had 67 percent of the U.S. imported car market, Toyota and Nissan together had a 4 percent share, In the first eight months this year, two Japanese concerns had 30.7 percept of the market, compared with Volkswageo's 35.7 per-

A principal problem, as competitors see it, is that VW is mainly known for the beetle. This suits many buyers, but others think the Japanese cars offer variety as well as economy styling.
With signs growing that the bectle was nearing the saturation point in many markets, VW started moving to expand its product

But in most markets, sales of Volkswagens have often pillet been disappointing. In addition, the company's production methare geared to high volume without changes, and the addition of various new models has thrown the formula of production and profit into turmoli, says one

Pennsy Unit Reports $246 Million '70 Loss

The Pennsylvania Co. investment Subsidiary of the Penn-Central Transportation Co., reported yesterday a net loss of $246,15 million for 1970. In 1969, the company earned $87.57 million.

Victor H. Palmiert, president of Pennsylvania Co., said the loss was the result of write-offs of Investments in Penn-Central and Great Southwest Corp., of which it owns 82 percent.

Describing the earnings as ancient history because most of the component charges had been made public previously, Mr. Pal-meri said the company is curcently operating at a profit. I don't want anybody to get the iden that his sear's loss means this company is bankrupt or something," he said. "It isn". All the subdidiaries are operating at a profit this year."

Early Wall St. Rally Fails, Prices Drop

Profit-Taking and Fear Depress the Market

By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (NYT). -The latest "Nixon rally" lasted only a few hours on the New York Stock Exchange today. By the tinal bell, prices closed lower to round out a week of five declining sessions.

After running chead nearly 6 at 11 a.m., the Dow Jones industrial average started to slip steadily and ended with a loss ot 1.97 at 889.21. Its actback for the week totaled 18.91, with about one-half of this decline taking place on Wednesday.

Stocks were off and running at the opening bell, thanks to President Nixon's speech last night in Detroit. Among other things, Mr. Nixoo appeared to rule out completely any controls on corporate profits during phase two of the new economic program after the initial phase expires on Nov. 13. This was interpreted as favorable for the market in today's early-morning trading, inasmuch as a possible ceiling on profits has been one of the lurking fears of Wall Street. On the subject of profits, the President stated that he had no wish to "penalize" any sector of the economy for being success-

But with one lurking fear lald to rest, others came rushing in to tip the market lower.

were the confusion stirred by the international currency situation, a heavy amount of offerings on the equity calendar and the disposition of some institutions to sell their recent winners and take profits.

Offered as an example of this profit-taking pressure was Gannett, a stock that has enjoyed a substantial price rice this year. Today, it tumbled 2 3/4 to 54 1.2, with a single big block accouoting tor most of the volume. Bausch & Lomb, down 3 to 128, ranked as the largest point loser on the active list.

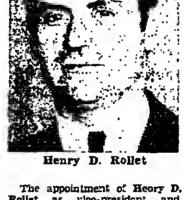

Amoog the blue chips, Eastman Kodak fell 2 to 83 1 2. Volume, holding at about resterday's moderate pace, amounted to 13.46 million shares, with point-plus declines in Sperry

Rand, Memorex and Control The American Exchange index closed up 0.03 to 25.35 and volume reached 2.9 million shares, about equal with yesterday's turnover.

How to place your portfolio under investment management starting with as little as $5,000

If the money you have today is to grow in the future toward more iocome, or for education, travel, leisure, retirement, it must be kept working full time to achieve your goals. Yet you may find that you are actually losing ground due to inflation, taxes or lack of time for investment decisions. To help solve this problem, clients in 55 countries have lurned to The Danforth Associates Investment Management Plan. It has, we believe, proved especially efficient io providing continuing capital growth supervision for portfolios of from $5,000 to $50,000-on behalf of people who recognize and can share the risks and rewards of common stock investments. The cost is modest, as low as $100 per year. For a complimentary copy of a 42 page report describing this tested plan, its complete 10-year "performance record,"

WITHOUT Marx or Jesus" will please a variety of opinions. It ought to please all those who have been protesting the Indochina war in the streets or on campus, who have been fighting for right and justice for Negroes and Indians, who have changed by exhortation and example certain current life styles in the use of drugs, clothes, domestic relationships and obliga-tions to the state. For they will learn from Jean-François Revel that they have launched the new American revolution and success fully too. His book should also be welcomed by the multisyllabic Mr. Agnew, the stlent majority and the hardhat swinging labor leaders who will now be assured that the ongoing revolution they have been complaining about to deaf ears is really here—confirmed by a French leftist who would scarcely see eye to eye with them on anything else. And it will probably please a great many liberals who will be happy to learn that the chaos that swirled around them in the last 10 or 15 years really does have a pattern

Revel is a political and literary commentator, disillusioned with orthodox left-wing parties, with a horror of all autocracies, left or right, who has worked out a definition of revolution to suit his needs. He sees that definition made flesh in the United States.

He takes on all the anti-Americanism current in French and European intellectual circles and refutes their charges with a deftness, a blithe, springy logic that is a delight to read. His rapier-like style should not blind anyone to the seriousness of his stand. It certainly won't disguise his great admiration for the American political process and the way it has been used. In fact, his admiration is so unrestrained that it makes one wonder why a revolution is necessary at all. Wouldn't strongly linked it be better for everything to remain as it is?

The obverse side of his praise for America is his castigation of the French. His criticism of De Gaulie is neat and unqualified: A bumbler and a failure in economic matters and a man resolutely facing the past in for- it belies the res eign affairs. Revel still can't get over the fact that after kicking ing for political out the general from office, the French voters went on to put French voters went on to put ficiency materials followers in his place. The the standards of left, he claims, is paralyzed at the thought of taking power. Stadium rental conditions in Washington and radio-television revenues would be factors in a decision by San Diego to transfer officials, stunned by the departure of the Senators, are expected to be liberal with any new stadium tenant.

A factor favoring Washington's chance of acquiring the San Diego club would be the absence of any bidding contest, in view of the desire by Padres owners to retain control of the club. "There is no price on the team," said

In their maiden year in San Diego, the Padres drew only 613,321 in home attendance, lowest ever for an expansion club. Last season's count was 633.453, with this season's drop to 550,-000 seen as a factor in the team's readings to more.

Rams, Raiders Face Pair of NFL Spoilers

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (UPI) .-Can the Los Angeles Rams and the Oakland Ralders find that lost magic that made the two clubs perennial powerhouses in their conferences of the Notional Pootball League?

The answer to that question has o lot to do with the upstart Atlanta Falcons and the Sun Diego Chargers in two key West Coast clashes this Sunday.

The Rame, their defense depleted by former coach George Allen, moved on to chach the Washington Redskins and took many Rams along with him. were shocked by the New leans Saints in their season opener last week, 24-20.

The Falcons, meanwhile, upset the San Prancisco 49ers, 20-17, and are the surprise leaders of the Western Division of the National Pootball Conference along with the Saints.

Rams Farored

However, Atlanta has never beaten the Rams in 10 tries and the oddsmakers think Los Angeles will make it 11 in a row. They've made the Rams 2 1/2point favorites.

The Raiders, one of the premier teams in the American Pootball Conference, must bounce back after a humiliating defeat nt the hands of the New England Patriots last week.

The Chargers had a much better time of it as they upset the Kansas City Chiefs, 21-14, and looked impressive doing it as quarterback John Hadi and run ning back Mike Garrett starred. Last season these two Western Division foes played twice and only three points separated them. The first came ended in a tie and the Ralders won the second contest, 20-17, on a last-second field goal by George Blands. The Raiders are 2 1/2-point favorites.

In other games this Sunday. Washington is three over the New York Giants, Dallas is 13 over Philadelphia Minnesota is 13 over Chicago, San Francisco is 13 over New Orleans, Baltimore is five over Cleveland, Cincinnati is 6 1/2 over Pittsburgh, Miami is five over Buffalo, Detroit is 10 1/2 over New England, Green Bay is 2 1/2 over Denver, Kansas City is seven over Houston, and, on Monday night, St. Louis is 5 1.2 over the New York Jets.

Revson Nears field due to three injuries. Betting Can-Am Croicn

EDMONTON, Ontario, Sept. 24 (AP),-Peter Revson goes into this Sunday's Can-Am road racing series event with the Can-Am title all but wrapped up, but at least 20 other top drivers are eve-ing the rest of the $75,000 in prize money.

The only person within striking distance of Revson is teammate Denis Hulme of New Zea-land, but it would take an unexpected combination of good luck for Hulme and bad juck for Revson for Hulme to come out Revson has 111 points and Hulme 80. The New Zealander would have .to win at least two of the remaining three races to take the title—and even that could happen only if mechanical problems forced Revson to drop out altogether.

Third place contender is Jo Silfert of Switzerland, who would still be one point short of a tie even if he won all three of the remaining races in the Can-Am

Kodes Upset Sullivan, the Auburn quarter-back and last season's total-of-U.S. Tennis

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24 (AP). -Roscoe Tanner, a hard-corving lefthander, upset second-seeded Jan Kodes of Crechoslovakia, 6-4, 6-4, last night in the $73,000 Pacific Southwest Open tennis tour-

Tanner, an unseeded Stanford juntor, joined unranked Jummy Conners, a University of California at Les Angeles sophomore, an surprise quarter-finalists. Connors defeated fourth-seeded Clark Graebner of New York, 6-4, 6-3,

In the second set. Tanner broke Kodea's serve in the ninth game, coming back from a 40-30 deficit with a passing backhard for deuce. The next paint went to Tanuer on a ball that hit the sidefine at midcourt, a point which Kodes disputed with much of the gallery on his side.

Kodes then lost the game with o long shot and the runnerup in the U.S. Open angrily slammed a ball out of the stadium.

Top-seeded Stan Smith won a best-of-nine tiebreaker, 5-3, to defeat unseeded Ismael El Sitafel of Egypt, 6-4, 7-6. Smith, winner of the U.S. Open over Kodes, won the tiebreaker with a hard serve that the Egyptian couldn't handle. Tanner will meet eighth-seeded Pancho Gonzales, U.S., in another quarter-final match. Gonzales, 43, advanced by defeating ex-UCLA player Jeff Borowiak, 6-3, Smith will meet ex-University of Southern California teammate Bob Lutz and Connors will meet Bob Carmichael of France.

Cliff Richey, U.S., seeded third, defeated Jaime Filiol of Chile, 6-4, 6-1, and will meet John Alexander of Australia, who defeated Roger Taylor, Britain, 7-5,

Lutz eliminated Britain's John Cooper, 6-4, 6-4, and Carmichael upset Frank Frochling, U.S., 6-3,

The top-seeded woman, Billie-Jean King advanced in the quar-ter-finals by deteating Betty Ann Hansen, U. S., 6-1, 7-0. Sevenihseeded Valerie Ziegenfus was eliminated by Leslie Hunt, an unsceded Australian, 7-5, 6-1, Betty Stove, the Netherlands, lost to Wendy Overton, U.S., G-7, 6-1. 6-4.

without chaperones, and so many hus drivers quit that the bus company said they wouldn't rent them another ous sgain unless ao adult other than the hus driver accompanied the children. At first the mothers tried to hire chaperones, but they couldn't take it, so finally it was decided a different mother would ride the hus each day, trylog to maintain some semblance of order. To give them a certain esprit de corps they called themselves the "Mother Riders of School Bus

No. 5.' As a young newspaperman on the Paris Herald Tribune. I was always voluoteering for dangerous assignments, sod when the editor of the paper ssked for someone to write a story about what it was like to ride an Americao school bus in Paris, I asked to go on the mission.

The "mother of the day" was a Mrs. Richard Edelstein, whose husband worked for Paramount Pictures. She had ridden No. 5

A Heavenly Baby

MIAMI. Sept. 24 (Reuters) .-- A baby boy was born 29,500 feet over Georgia yesterday aboard an Eastern Air Lines flight from Miami to Detroit, Mother and son were reported in good con-

We picked up our charges, about 35 girls and boys, at 3:15 o'clock. The bus was fairly quiet when we first started off because most of the students thought 1 was a detective who had been hired by the parents to keep them in line. (This was a possibility because the school had gona through four bus drivers in five months, and the mothers had threatened to hire a detective after the last driver had slipped on a banana peel on the steps of the bus and broken his

But when they found I was nothing more than a reporter, the wraps were off. The students in the back of the bus started hitting the students in front of them with their school books. The injured retaliated by swinging their hinch boxes at the attackers' heads. Mrs. Edelstein went back to break it up. when a boy in the front produced a live frog, which he dropped down a 12-year-old girl's dress.

Her screams brought Mrs. Edelstein to the front of the bus. which gave the students in the middle an opportunity to kick the ones sitting in front of them. A firebase for spitballs had been set up in the last row. which was targeted in on the bus driver, who, like all French drivers was harreling through the osrrow streets of Paris at 60 miles an hour, Every 10 minutes the bus screeched to a halt to discharge soma human cargo, which gave the other riders a chance to throw orange peels at pedestrians. Mrs. Edelstein walked up and down the hus, first threatening, theo offering bribes of candy and finally making the driver stop until all her charges had quieted

Miraculously we had arrived at the eod of the line with no seri-ous casusities. The only one shaken hy the trip, hesides myself, was the bus driver.

School Busing in Paris _____ Sir Isaac Newton, the Mad Scientist _____

By Robert Reinhold

CAMBRIDGE , Mass. (NYT).—If ever there was a mad scientist, it was Isaac

Scarcely out of college, this quarrelsome, vengeful, pompous yet hrilliant scientist had already invented the calculus, made major advances in optics and laid the groundwork for the laws of dynamics and universal gravitation that made him

Yet later, at the height of his creative powers, he gave up science to run the Mint in London, where he spent the rest of his life chasing counterfeiters and dahbling in alchemy and mysticism. He died in 1727 at age 84, apparently a virgin,

These strange contradictions are partly at the root today of a major international revival in the study of the works and enigmatic personality of the man who revolutionized science by formulating a single mathematical law to explain the movements of the planets, the tides and the motion of objects on earth.

The core of this system is Newton's Law of Universal Gravitation. This holds that there exists between any two bodies an attraction that varies inversely with the square of the distance between them and directly with the product of their masses. The law made its discoverer into a man who is widely regarded today as the greatest scientist ever.

Such is the growth of Newton studies among historians of science, intellectual historians and scientists today that they call it an industry.

Edition of 'Principia'

If industry is the right word, then the chairman of the board is probably Prof. I. Bernard Cohen of Harvard, who will publish on Oct. 7 the first volume of his long-awaited new edition of Newton's great treatise, "Philosophiae Naturalis Principia Mathematica," or the "Principia," as it is commonly called

To Prof. Cohen, it is not just the ohvious Impact of Newton's monumental scientific work that makes him so fascinating. "Newton was very far from what used to he considered the stereotype of the scientist," he said. "Newton was a queer guy. He devoted so much of his creative life to alchemy, theology and mystical philosophy that no one dares say let's edit all his

"He left five million words of prose and of these I would say easily 50 percent are things that would seem abhorrent to any

"Such is the growth of Newton studies among historians of science, intellectual historians and scientists today that they call it an industry."

scientist who looks upon Newton as a father figure to venerate. His lifa and personality allow us to understand in its most acute forms the problems that beset

Prof. Cohen's book is just part of a rising worldwide flood of Newton literature. Next month the MIT Press will bring out "The Annus Mirabilis of Sir Isaac Newton," the proceedings of a major Newton symposium held at the University of Texas in

Among other recent works are "A Portrait of Isaac Newton," a controversial Freudian analysis of the scientist by Frank A Manuel of New York University, and "Atoms and Powers," a study of Newton's impact on chemistry by Prof. Arnold Fhackray of the University of Pennsylvania.

Foreign Scholarship

Moreover, the industry extends far beyond the English-speaking world. There are said to be two dozen or so Newtonian scholars each in Germany, France and the Soviet Union. Other important work has come out of Italy, Romania, Spain, Denmark, Holland, Sweden, Egypt, India, Japan and even China.

With the rising impact of science and technology on everyday life scholars are paying increasing attention to the roots of modern science and, not surprisingly, particular attention to the strange man who stands out as a giant in the world of physics.

At the same time, the historians have changed their approach. No longer content with flat chronologies of scientific developments, they now seek to understand the complex internal intellectual process hy which individual scientists arrived at their conclusions. The father of this technique, called "conceptual analysis," was the late Alexandre Koyre of the Institute for Advanced Studies in Princeton.

It was the problem of applying this method to the complex and voluminous writings of Newton that prompted Prof. Koyre to begin a collaboration with Prof. Cohen 15 years ago to produce an edition of the "Principle" that would show the many changes it underwent in the course of three editions that came out under Newton's supervision from 1687 to 1726.

Prof. Koyre died in 1964, but Prof. Cohen pressed on alone with financial support from the National Science Poundation and duction " will be the first of six mublished jointly by Harvard and Cambridge uni-

Basically, what Prof. Cohen has done is print in facsimile the Latin text of the final (third) edition. Then this edition was compared word-for-word with the two previous editions and with four annotated and interleaved copies from Newton's personal library and the original manuscript. Every line is numbered and wherever a change appears in any of the other copies, it is printed below in a footnote.

'A Living Document'

With these variant readings, according to Prof. Cohen, it is possible for the first time to read the work as "a living docu-ment" in which the evolution of Newton's basic ideas, methods of proof, philosophical outlook, general precepts and use of scientific data over a period of 39 years can be traced.

While Newton's science has stood the test of centuries—it is used even today to calculate the paths of earth satelliteshistorians are bringing a more sophisticated approach to the study of scientific

Newton the man is no longer idolized. It is evident that he lived a tortured; miserable life despite his wide success and fame. By many contemporary accounts, he was unpleasant, intolerant, petulant, suspicious, nasty.

An attempt to achieve some understanding of this perplexing personality is offered by Prof. Manuel. In sifting the facts of Newton's early childhood for psychoanalytic clues, Prof. Manuel detects the genesis of Newton's "major neurosis" in a number of painful traumas premature birth, temporary abandonment hy his mother and frailty as a youth.

By treating word lists in the fatherless boy's exercise books as a kind of freeassociation test. Prof. Manuel detects rage and destructive urges against himself, his steplather and half-brother. And, he concludes in part, Newton was fixated on his mother and this "may have crippled him sexually, but there was also a great source of power, strength and energy in the early, close relationship."
